Auto Magnate Must Modify Offer to Secure Shoals, Declares James A. Hollomon.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON, Staff Correspondent of The Constitution.

Sheffield, Ala., March 29 .- (Special.)-The appropriation committee of the house of representatives will be asked at once to include $8,000,000 a year for three years for the com pletion of the Wilson dam as the keystone of the original Muscle Shoals undertaking. This will be recommend ed by a majority of the joint congressional committee which tonight completed a three-day inspection and investigation of the government's properties in the Muscle Shoals district. It will be opposed by a minority who will insist upon acceptance first of the Ford proposal.

This inspection has been the only thorough one ever made by a memor group of members of either branch of congress, and has developed the one outstanding conclusion that plans of the Wilson administration projecting the Muscle Shorts deopment was the most constructive rtaking by the government since the building of the Panama canal. It has also brought to light the fact that its completion now is not very esthat development of the water power hat is next in capacity to Niagara, and thus the second greatest in Amer ica, will be a forward industrial ster that is without a parallel in federal accomplishments on this continent.

Prejudice Removed. The inspection has swept much of the prejudice away and members from ed every detail of the plans on this trip are looking at it tonight for the first time as a national and not a sectional project.

The proposition that Senator Norris and others will immediately make to congress to complete the Wilson ponents of Ford's and other private proposals on the ground that, while it is agreed that Muscle Shoals must be completed, it is not proposed that it shall be operated by the government either as a power or a fertilizer project during times of peace, and that the first step should be the final conclusion as to the private proposals notably that of Ford, which is the only one at present holding serious

FEDERAL RESERVE DISTRICT REPORT MOST OPTIMISTIC

More Apparent Progress Has Been Made in Recent Weeks, Says Review Issued Wednesday.

SHOW GREATEST GAIN U. S. BASIC INDUSTRIES

Farm Work Delayed in Sixth District and Planters Are Keeping Down Expenses.

Business improvement during recent weeks has shown "more apparent' progress over the previous month, according to the monthly review issued Wednesday night by the Federal Reserve bank, of Atlanta.

Distinctly optimistic, the report de clared that although advancement to normal conditions is still irregular, there is more evidence of actual progress than at any other time during the reconstruction period. Reports to the institution indicate "a better mental attitude and a more encouraging outlook," the review continued.

Owing to almost continuous rains in ome sections of the sixth reserve district, farm work has been delayed, according to the report, while farmers are striving to hold cultivation expenses to the minimum. Fertilizer is being used on a medium scale. Coton is being planted as a money crop, but diversified products will show a large increase over 1921, it was asserted. Summary of Country. In its summary of condition throughout the United States, the review stated that the outstanding feature has been the improvement in basic industries, including steel, copper and other metals. Building is still on the upgrade, it continues while there has been a marked rease in unemployment.

"Evidence of improvement in th ousiness of the district during February is shown in comparison of retail and wholesale trade, and debits to individual accounts shown in this issue of the review," the sixth district report stated. "Actual increases ar shown in sales in some of the whole sale lines, and the percentages of decrease shown in others, is retail sales and in debits to individual accounts reflect a more favorable comparison than has been the case heretofore. Th statement of debits to indivdual ac ounts at fifteen citles of the distric for February showed a decrease of 8.9 per cent compared with the same period a year ago; the comparison for January reflected a decrease of 12.5 per cent, and for December, a decrease of 16.5 per cent. Sales by department stores, representing the condition condition retail trade during February were 15.5 per cent below figures for February a year ago, but this percentage shows the most favorable comparison for several months, and price levels are onsiderably lower than was the case in February, 1921. "Lumber manufacturers are encoun aged over the increase in the volum

Nothing but a building of fireproof construction is allowed to be erected within the inner fire limits. It was pointed out by the underwriters that the rapid spread of the business dis trict has carried it beyond the inner fire limits, and in the expanded area the many non-fireproof structures are

The situation, therefore, with regard to Ford and Muscle Shoals has not changed since Monday, when the committee unofficially decided that the Gorgas plant was a physical and probably legal impossibility.

The net result of the investigation has been a determination to com-plete the original undertaking, the first step being the completion of the Wilson dam and a drifting, if anyhing, further away from the possibility of Henry Ford's acquiring the properties under the Ford proposal, However, provided that the govern-ment should complete the Wilson dam, any present day appropriation by congress to that end would not of itself effect the Ford offer or the consideration thereof.

Swift's Premium Ham and Swift's Premium Bacon are produced from only the best hogs. Many of the animals we buy do not furnish meat of Premium quality.

Since these are the choice cuts from the best hogs, cured and smoked in the best way, with scientific care and precision, they are naturally in great demand; but these cuts, with the loin from which pork chops come, represent only about 34 per cent of the live animal.

The remaining 66 per cent consists of the cheaper cuts, such as spare ribs; shoulders, trimmings, pigs' feet, lard, etc., and shrinkage in dressing and curing. Shrinkage is equal to one pound in each five, and has no value whatever.

That is why the prices of "Premium" Ham and Bacon and pork loins are higher than the price of the live animal.

Everybody wants them—and yet they are only about one-third of the entire weight. "Premium" Bacon alone is only about 8 per cent.

The great demand for the choicer cuts, and the smaller demand for the cheaper cuts, constitute the reason for the comparatively higher price of the one-third, and the lower price of the other two-thirds. (Some of the lower priced cuts sell at less than the per-pound price of the live animal.)

It is only by utilizing all possible by-products and exercising the utmost skill and efficiency that we are able to average a profit of a fraction of a cent a pound on all our

An increasing number of wholesale grocery reports contain the statement that collections are improving. Some of the reports state that advances in the price of some staple articles have taken place and that confidence is rapidly being restored. Most of the reports indicate that business from the agricultural sections is lagging, but that city sales and collections are showing improvement. One report states that there is a decided de-crease in the number of checks re-turned by banks unpaid.

Dyer "anti-lynching bill," so-called, will die of suffocation in a senate It passed the in response to the urgent demands of a lot of negroes and negro-philes who are able to excite and direct the gressional districts in the eastern and middle western and middle western states. But I am told by senators on both sides of the chamber that they see no necessity and feel no particular partisan urge to bring the bill into that forum. The most notable constitutional law-The most notable constitutional law-yers with whom I have talked are fair-ly unanimous in the belief that, should the bill ever be enacted; the supreme court of the United States would promptly and probably without a dis-senting voice, declare it unconstitu-tional, null and void.

When this treatment of lynching by federal legislation and judicial action began to be agitated three years ago, Hon. Elihu Boot was quoted as having said in a public speech that where a state had authority to legislate on a subject matter and refused or failed to do so in a way to conserve the general welfare then the federal government could assume authority to do the work.

That was so surprising a statement that I wrote to Mr. Root and asked-him to verify it. and justify it, or re-to exercise that right it is the duty of the federal government to perform

"Such a doctrine would be wholly in the constitution of the United

As Mr. Root is a chief mahatma of the republican party, his view of this matter should be weighty in defeating the Dyer dervishes.

The republicans generally profess 100 per cen: devotion to the doctrines of their demi-god, Alexander Hamilton. By that token they should be guided by his view of this very question. In the New York convenquestion. In the New York convention to consider the proposed federal constitution the question was raised as to how far the federal authority could usurp the existing authority of the several sovereign states?

Hamilton replied, as reported in 1 Elliott 321, as follows:

"The acts of the United States therefore will be absolutely obligators."

"The acts of the United States therefore will be absolutely obligatory, as to all the proper objects and powers of the general government. The states as well as individuals, are bound by these laws. But the laws of con-gress are restricted to a certain sphere; and when they separt from sphere; and when they depart from this sphere, they are no longer su-preme or binding. In the same man-ner, the states have certain independ-ent powers, in which their laws are supreme; for example, in making and executing laws concerning the punish-ment of certain crimes—such as mur-der, theft, etc.—the state can not be controlled."

Back in 1842 an endeavor was made in congress to enact that aliens committing crimes against a state's laws could transfer their cases into federal courts and, under certain specified pleas, demand a discharge.

That bill was ably championed and more ably opposed. In the senate giant intellects grappled in debate, but the defenders of state rights won the battle and the bill was defeated. It was there set up as unalterable American doctrine that the states, whoever may be the offender, can alone pass laws and affix the punistment for all offenses against a state, and that otherwise was not the intention of the constitution; that congress had never claimed such power and no federal judge had ever pretended that it could be granted.

Yet now, agsin, these Dyerites are claiming that the states can not execute their own laws, and that they may be superseded and controlled by the federal tribunals. In other words the Dyer bill seeks to indict a whole state—government and people—and penalise them dras-rically by federal power.

Many of the tea rooms employ "sitters." Their job is to give atmosphere to the place—life and laughter. New York follows the crowd and if a tea room looks deserted they go elsewhere—hence the "sitters." The tea room names are also undergoing a change. Formerly they suggested colonial quiet. Women shower him with gitts—indeed he carries a diamond studded cigarette case given to him by the daughter of a man whose name causes Wall street to tremble.

He has only scorn for the herd. They annoy him. Even among women who have had a high school and college training there is still ignorance of the kind that was once deemed refined and polite and is still fostered by the great majority of high schools in America and some of high schools in America and some of the colleges—ignorance of all that pertains to self and sex. This is re-flected in the superstition of women that more or less incapacity is to be expected for two or three days in each month. As a matter of fact, the feminine sex is neither weaker nor more subject to injury or disease of the reproductive system from strains or accidents or exposure or cold than the masculine sex. But it covers a great many medical diagnostic shortcomings and helps to bolster up many a case in litigation if these little delusions of feminine weakness are fostered in the popular mind. There are literally thousands of ignorant women, many of them college bred, mind you, who suffer, in mind, because of the common notions about "displacement" for example. There are only three strictly federal prisons in the country. One is located at Atlanta, Ga., another at Leavenum worth, Kan., and the third at McNeill Island, near Tacoma Wash. All three are filled with convicts and that at Leavenworth is crowded almost beyond its capacity. You will observe that it's a CAREY Shingle, which is approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Atlanta's big fire in 1917 destroyed nearly 2,000 homes, causing a property loss amounting to millions of dollars. Unsafe shingles were the tinder which fed this fire and enabled it to spread so rapidly.

An ordinance was immediately passed requiring that all new buildings be covered with roofs having standard fire-resisting properties. Carey Asfaltslate Shingles fully comply with the requirements of this ordinance.

Carey Shingles are beautiful in appearance, they are long-lasting, they lie flat, and never require any painting or other upkeep expense.

In buying a home, or building one, be sure to fully satisfy yourself that it's roofed with "CAREY" Shingles, in accordance with this ordinance. They're spark-proof, and will never curl.

At 7:30 o'clock she boarded a train at the union station and left for Augusta, from whence she goes to Charleston, S. C., where she will be engaged for several days in ilming exterior scenes in her latest picture now nearing completion. "Like Coming Home."

"Atlanta is almost like coming hom to me," she declared. "It was my home for several months back in 1907 when the yellow fever epidemic was raging in New Orleans. My mother and I came here and took a cottage and I came here and took a cottage on Peachtree street, where we resided for about six months until the scare was over. We were residing in New Orleans when it started. I shall never forget the brief period of my residence here. At that time I was only 5 or 6 years old, and I remember distinctively the enjoyment I derived in eating Mexican kisses which were manufactured by an Atlanta candy concern." "Why don't some of you newspaper writers," she said, "come to the defence of the American girls. who are being chided by European writers such as Elinor Glyn. It's an outrage, all this talk about the so-called American flapper, by our illustrious English cousins.

"Recently, in one of our monthly magazines I read a story by Miss Glyn in which she branded the Ameri-can girl as 'a lovely, brainless, cigarette-smoking person of undisciplined sex.' She also says the flapper is as hard as nails and cheap as dirt.' Outside of that the reader is left to assume that the present-day girl of the United States is all right. "Snarling of Cynic."

"The trouble with Eleanor," continued Miss Griffith, "and others who are continually lambasting our girls, is that she is passe. "Them's' harsh words, but I mean them, and I believe all other right-thinking Americans will agree with me. Her attack is vicious. It's simply the snarling of a cynical old woman meowing at the youth of our country—and getting good, bright-American dollars for it—dollars that whe's going to take back and agend she's going to take back and spend in her dear England.

"The American girl doesn't require any defender. She is her own justifi-cation. She is far, and away better than her sister of the last generation, draped and swathed from her throat to her ankle.

"What harm is there in a girl to smoke a cigarette or wearing short skirts. She shows her limbs in a bathing suit at Palm Beach. Why not on Peachtree or Whitehall street?"

She had a sudden generous impulse, and when she reached the hotel and found that Barstowe had not yet arrived, she went into the waiting room and, stripping off her gloves, addressed an envelope to her aunt. This jelly is much better flavored than that made by old methods requiring unripe grapes, because grape joice is pressed from ripe full-flavored grapes. One of the small tragedies of marriage is embodied in the settling down." Too many men and women seem to hold the idea when they marry they turn their backs upon a lurid past and set for towards a placid state where nothing will ever happen. A most enjoyable double operalogue

A most enjoyable double operalogue program, "L'Oracalo" and "Lorely" was the offering on Tuesday night under the auspices of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R.

The old Rhine legend, the basis of "Lorely," was read by Mrs. Benjamin Elsas, who has had much experience as a reader, and whose work was greatly enjoyed. Miss Margaret Battle, one of Atlanta's finest lyric sopranos, and Clifford Durham, a fine tenor, were the singers of the occasion.

The production of "L'Oracalo" was in the capable hands of Wilford Wat-ters, director of the Brenau studios. He was assisted by Mrs. Ulric Atkinson, who read the story of the opera. Miss Annabelle Wood, at the piano and Miss Elizabeth Andrews, one of his talented pupils.

Mrs. Atkinson's attractive personality lent great charm to the performance and her dramatic and graphic recital of the plot and text was very cital of the plot and text was very illuminating.

Miss Wood brought out the themes and harmonies, of the excerpts from the score which she played, with splendid authority and clarity and accompanied Mrs. Atkinson and the singers with much sympathy.

Mrs. Andrews displayed a beautiful lyric soprano voice in the bits allotted to her from the role of the little Chinese girl. "Ah Yoe," and an artistry in the interpretation which promises well for her future.

Mr. Watters sang the admonition of the Oracle, Win Shee, with fine sonorous tone and dramtic effect.

Interested in Sonia?"

Brunt put down his paper and regarded his wife in satonishment.
"Madelyn, I have known you to make up romances for neighbors and for strangers, even, but if this isn't the most ridiculous I'll—I'll eat this paper. Harold Brunt isn't going to fall in love with any housemaid, not while he keeps his sense and his eye on the iuture."

"All the same," Mrs. Brunt continued fearfully, "I think we would do well to let her go." She braced hercelf for the reply.

"She suits you, doesn't she, and you know she gives the place an air. You say so, yourself, everybody says so. Ridiculous! Nonsense! The girl stays."

stays."

If young Brunt was interested in Sonia there were no indications that the girl returned the attention. Serene and dignified, she went her way unmindful of the aituation. It was Harold, himself who made her the subject at the next family conference. "Now, mother," he began, "don't think I'm mixing in where it is none of my business, but there is something queer about that girl. She's so supe-

Mrs. Brunt frowned and the boy went on. "That's not all, not what I'm trying to say. You know on her evenings off she doesn't get back until late and one night when I was coming in I saw her arrive in a limousine. You would not believe it but two men got out, held the door open, neiped her to the walk, bowed, and kept their hats in their hands until she was in. I wonder who those guys were."

The mother made mechanical reply while she collected her troubled thoughts. "Don't say 'those guys,' Harold, and don't spend any more time thinking about Sonia. She has informed me she is leaving next week."

The boy looked at his mother close-ly. "If you fire Sonia on my ac-count" he said, "I'li, I'll run off and marry a chorus girl. There's no sense in it. I'm punied, that's all."

The mother, on these occasions, sniffed and coughed and gave the girl an order which, as she said, sent her about her business. It was after Harold had voiced Sonia's praises for half an hour, send-ing out timid feelers, that Mr. Brunt decided on action. She sent for the

"Sonia," she said, "I am sorry but you must leave."

"I have not satisfy?" the maid questioned with a look both proud and hurt. "Tell me where I have fail."

Mrs. Brunt hesitated, several stories in her mind, when Sonia stamped her foot and commanded. "Tell me the real reason. It is my right!"

In the presence of Slavic dramatics the flustered mother was helpless. Sonia, her black eyes flashing, was all the queen Harold had pictured. She stamped her foot again.

"Well, I never!" gasped Mrs. Brunt. "If you must know, it is because you have made Harold love you and he wishes to marry you."

The astonishing housemaid filled the house with musical laughter. Again, she was intensely dramatic.

"Me marry your son? It is preposterous. You will know this—see!" and she opened a locket and thrust it in the other's face, "I am of Russia, yes, and a housemaid. But in the evening when we of the Old Russia meet I am still the princess. In the spring, when he learns the language and may get better employment. I will marry Count Dubrosky, a captain of the crar's yacht."

Mrs. Brunt was speechless.

"Until that time I work here, or omewhere else. But your son, he is impossible!" The girl smiled ruefully, then lifte: her head proudly.

"The captain, now, is what you call a wash-disher."

CHAPTER XL.
A Useless Appeal.
Sally faced her reflection wearily

Sally faced her reflection wearily that evening as she dressed for the dinner-dance at the country club. Her piquant little face was unwontedly pale, and violet shadows darkened her blue eyes. She felt very tired and very helpess before this new danger that threatened her. Surely she was paying a high penalty for flirting with "Giddy" Gilbert!

She considered pleading a headache as an excuse, and staying at home—exhausted as she was, there would have been no fabrication about that! Yet, she was afraid to avoid this meeting with Gilbert, for fear of what he might do. She knew him too well to dare hope that he would drop the matter if she did not see him at the club that night. She leaned back in the chair that stood before her dressing table, pressing her hands against her closed eyes, trying in vain to find a way out of her difficulty. But none presented itself.

Keith draps Bally off.

His face tose before her—the mocking hazel eyes, that had been so tender in the old days. when they looked on her, the clean-cut lips, whose touch had sent a hot wave of ecstacy through her whole being when he pressed them to the palms of her hands. She recalled the first time he had done that—the moment when it seemed to her that moment when it seemed to her that that kips would, lie always there, like a golden talisman. Now she stared at her hand in disgust, as if it were irrevocably besmudged.

At last, when Mrs. Randall's English maid came to her, she submitted wearily to the woman's ministrations, relaxing, unconsciously, under the clever hands that brushed and coiled her burnished hair, and garbed her in the airy, gossamer-like bits of lace and chiffon that were her clothes.

"Madame's perfume?" questioned the maid. the maid.

"The black narcissus," answered Sally, indifferently recalling the time when to consider such details had been a pleasure in itself; they mattered so little now. And as the woman picked up the squat, golden bottle, with its enamel cork carved in flower shape, she sighed again; she had bought that perfume the day that her husband had left for the west—the day that she, flaming with the eagerness for the adventure that lay before her, had cast caution to the winds, joined hands with Gaddy Gilbert, and begun that day dance that led her along the edge of the primrose path. She was ready at last. Her frock of sea-foam green but partly veiled the silver slip that sheathed her delicate, supple body. She looked fragile, exquisite; only in her deep-blue eyes was there any hint of the terror that gripped her heart.

Moving slowly down the wide

Moving slowly down the tairs, she caught sight of G stairs, she caught sight of Graham Browne in the hall below, and the thought came to her that here she might find help. He knew what Gilbert was; he knew how careless the man was of his own safety when bent on getting anything he wanted. Surely he would befriend her now, would help her to escape from the net which she had unconsciously woven for herself.

She had known that it would take so much courage to approach the sub-ject; the man's keen appraising em-barrassed her, and she found herself stumbling awkwardly through the sen-tences in which she tried to make clear to him her need of help.

"But I don't just see—I don't quite understand—" he began, when she stopped. "Of course, your relationship with Gilbert—"
She flushed angrily; his choice of that word and manner of uttering it made her feel guilty, somehow.
"You know quite well that we were merely good friends—" she began hotly.
"I inferred nothing more" he re-

botly.

"I inferred nothing more," he replied, and felt she like a child who has been needlessly punished. "But just what is that you fear from him? Of course, I realize that he is madly in love with you; everyone who has seen you together knows that. But even with his habit of disregarding consequences, I hardly believe that he would dare do anything that would imperil you."

imperil you."

He talked on and on—endlessly, it seemed to her. She felt that she

••••••• Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly *********

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

amall bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat lickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough atops entirely. Splendid for bronchial asthms.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, lamous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute astisfaction or money refunded.

Tomorrow—The Price of a Flirtation.

Yet, as they drove down the white road that gleamed in the moonlight, her thoughts flew to a man on whom she could have a pended; her husband who had held her life so gently in his strong hands, erring, perhaps, because he shielded it so carefully, yet, nevertheless protecting it. Where was he now, she asked herself—had he found happiness that she had not been able to give him? Had he discovered that in his life with her there had been waste places, which could be made to bloom by someone else?

She pictured him in the country that he loved so, in the great woods to which he had gone. He would be sitting by the campfire now—that same thin scimitar of a new moon that hung so low in this eastern sky, was hanging over him. Perhaps he saw it over the shoulder of the sweet-faced, brown-haired girl who had been his right hand through many a business fight, when she herself was idling the hours away and spending the money that he gave her so generously.

Sally felt humiliated, debased, in spite of her jealousy. What had she would scream hysterically if something did not stop that steady flow of words. He never forgot he was a power in the financial world, a man of action, of decision, and now he talked pompously as if for publication.

"He babbles on like a toothless old woman?" she told herself impatiently. What she had never realized was the fact that Graham Browne, like many another man of affairs, was great by proxy. Money and position which he had inherited had made him great; he had needed to do nothing but keep the money in the bank and in the safe investments in which it had been left to him, and speak slowly and with an air of great weight and importance. The world in which he moved gladly offered him a little tin halo, and he wore it complacently, believing in himself.

Sally saw that she could expect little from him. She must fight this battle herself, then, relying on the wits which she had never had to use before to extricate herself from her difficulty.

She followed Mrs. Randell out to the car a few moments later with a valiant mood lifting its wings in her heart. If she must fight, she would and never again would she ask help from a man, she told herself determinedly.

Yet, as they drove down the white road that gleamed in the moonlight, and the safe investments of the courter of the world. But the sight of the country club looming up just ahead, flung her own problem back at her and the monelight, in the moonlight, life of the country club looming up just ahead, flung her own problem back at her and the monelight, life of the country club looming up just ahead, flung her own problem back at her and the monelight, life of the country club looming up just ahead, flung her own problem back at her and the safe in the country club looming up just ahead, flung her own problem back at her and the wards of the world. reed this new exercise I am describing.

In most gymnasiums the method used to broaden shoulders is by means of lateral tension. The student stands between two upright parallel bars placed far enough apart so that his arms are extended at right angles to his body. He grasps the bars with both hands and pulls alternately first with the right, then with the left hand. This exercise atrengthens laterally the muscles of the shoulders.

If you cannot take the exercise this way you can get an almost identical action by means of a stretching board. This is nothing but a piece of board, which need not be more than 4 inches wide, but which should be as wide as the distance from palm to palm of each hand when your arms are stretched out on either side level with your shoulders. The exercise, then, is to grasp the board between the hands and to pull on it as hard as possible, then to relax the muscles

"I'did. You were made for."

"You needn't." said Eileen with a sigh. "Because I know. You are going to tell me that I am just the right size for a bungalow for two, of which you are the second, and that I need some big man like yourself to have you consider me any longer as a poor, helpless, clinging little thing, made only to be petted and protected! I'm studying for a doctor's degree. When the course is finished I am going to join you in China. You see, Peter, intend to be a medical missionary and you won't have to worry your dear old brain about me the least bit."

"Sweetheart," Peter declared with difficulty, "you are talking through your hat?"

She shrigged and smiled. "Won" you take me?"

"You know I'd fetch you the main the moon if you wanted him badly enough! You don't care, about this Professor Hodgson, do you?"

"Oh, no, Peter! Once or twice he's trisd to make love."

"Silly old goose!" said Eileen, squeezing his thumb.

There was a noticeable ripple when Eileen Lorimer walked into the ball-room that evening in the winsome attire of a Quaker maid, with Professor Hodgson, as Pierrot, on one side and the tall, commanding figure of Peter the Brazen, in a spick-and-span white-and-gold uniform of the Pacific Mail line, on the other.

A little later in the evening Peter wooked for his Quaker maiden and, unable to see her in the syncopating throng, elected to hunt for her. As he parted the hangings which shrouded the entrance to the dimly lighted conservatory he caught the angry thare of two eyes from a bench and realized that Eileen's stubborn professor was not yet pacified. At Professor Hodgson's side with her back toward Peter was a young woman in Quaker costume. Her head was not nitimately close to that of the young professor, but it was close. As Peter started to cross to her side he saw Hodgson's head dip low, saw the girly apparently yield herself into his arms, and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and as Peter stopped, stock still, he was a poung and and particulary and the cornidor.

He felt Eileen's light hand upon his arm. She was saying: "Mr. Moore and i have a great deal to talk over. You will excuse me, won't you, until tonight?"
Professor Hodgson, frowning, nodaed courteously. "Perhaps Mr. Moore would like to go, if he cares to stag it. I'm afraid every girl in town has been invited by now."
"Stag what?" queried Peter in a dry voice.
"There's to be a St. Valentine's ball tonight," enthused the girl. "You'll go, won't you?"
"But—but—" stammered Peter. "I had hoped that you and I could spend the evening by ourselves."
"Oh, but I couldn't do that!" cried Eileen with reproach in her big, gray yes. "Professor Hodgson invited me ages ago! Can't we talk this afternoon and tomorrow? Please go! I'll give you every other dance!"
"That's fine!" Professor Hodgson rejoined, "I'll be around at 8. See you later, Mr. Moore."
"So long!" Peter retorted affably and Eileen squeezed his arm ever so lightly.
"I want to talk to you all afternoon." she heard his name called in a silvery voice accompanied by a man's spleasant laugh and he went out on check to greet Anthony Andoyer and the twins. The twins and Anthony were passengers on a sight-seeing trip through the east. Peter had first contemplated Peggy and Helen Whipple in the King of Asia's dining room. It would have been a rather impossible thing not to see Peggy and Helen Whipple in the King of Asia's dining room. A tiny smile flickered across her fine lips.

Peter was examining the heap of wireless apparatus in the small room they had entered from the corridor.

"I am studying. You see, Peter," she explained, "I was rather fond of you at one time, and because it was your profession 1 became interested in it."

Hodgson's head dip low, saw the girl apparently yield herself into his arms, and as Peter stopped, stock still, he saw the long arms of the professor wrap themselves about the slim shoulders, drawing the hidden face toward him until the lips met his.

In that dreadful instant the heart of Peter the Brazen skipped a beat. He hesitated, then leaped across the intervening distance. Both Eileen and her professor leaped up. She seemed about to faint and sank back, with yes tightly closed, against Hodgson's ireast. Peter tried to speak but a moment passed before he could find words.

"Eileen—Eileen," he muttered, "you said—you told ma—oh, God!"

Hardly had he vanished than Eileen, recovering slowly from her daze, sprang after. But Hodgson detained her, gripping her arm. She seemed to realize for the first time what had been done and wiped her hand fiercely across her mouth, the reamt repository of the professor's suites and unwapected kiss.

"You—best?" she simmered. "You—best?" she sixtem for the door, but he dragged her back. "Oh. let me apologize," he laughed.

"Stop him!" cried Eileen shrilly. "Oh, please, somebody call him back!" A sophomore, always willing to aid a lady in distress, sprang to the chase and Eileen, breaking loose, stumbled after him. But they were too late. Peter had rushed to the station and caught a erain just as it was pulling out.

The next day, at a hotel in San Francisco, Peters at down at a desk in the writing room and penned a rief sote, addressing it in care of the fiste, addressing it in care of the steen coil of the vast, hidden covernment of the Gray Dragon. The import of the note was simply that he, Peter Moore, was returning to him and promised to interfere in no way with the band's activities. Crackers to break camp is the highest ranking and possibly the highest paid person connected with the association. President R. J. Spiller, pulling out tonight on his return trip to Atlanta. He should be well on his way by the time this reaches the columns of the south's standard newspaper.

Many of the recruits who have been doing splendid work at Bay St. Louis are packing up their grips for a change of scenery, while the whole squad bids adieu to this little Gulf Coast city Friday night, headed for Pensacola, and from there home.

Dea's involving several of the rookies have been completed and others are pending. The Greenville club of the Cotton States league this aftermoon Jeclined to take over the contract of Leonard Mumford, Atlanta boy who has been fighting Freddie Graff for third basing honors and Elmer Hymel, Bay St. Louis product, will be sent to Greenville in Leonard's place. Atlanta, and he can't be kept off much longer.

Fifteen players will be carried to Pensa ola for the brace of games with the Louisville Colonels Saturday and Sunday. The men who will not be placed with smaller leagues before the clan leaves and excepting those drawing unconditional releases, will be shipped straight through to Atlanta to await the arrival of the main squad, when practice will be resumed Monday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park.

The pitchers to make the Pensacola trip will be "Buddy" Napier, Dewey Marshall, Erskine Mayer, John Suggs and Phil Bedgood, Two will be used in each game, it was stated by Captain Ellam. Napier will probably start the opening end unter with Dewey Marshall slated for the relief job. All twizlers are in good shape and confident of stopping the heavy sluggers connected with the minor league champions.

Bill Rariden and Dutch Schmidt will handle the catching for both games, leaving Rey McClellan and Al Chipman, to be sent to Atlanta for a vacation of a day or two. The Pensacola Crew

Available for infield service at Pen-acola will be Captain Roy Ellam, eorge Schmidt, Bernsen Ritter and Graff. The chances are that George Schmidt will play both games at the shortfield, although Captain Ellam appears to be ready to start, should

The players to draw transportation to Atlatna at club's expense will be Al Chipman and Roy McClellan, catchers; Roberts, Williamson, Bolt, Cowan and Cy Barger, unless a shift is made later to include the latter on the Pensacola Pullman are the pitchers who will precede the squad to the home port. If a trade cannot be made for Mumford he will be brought back to Atlanta, President Spiller declared.

Bill Richards, last year with Carrollton in the Georgia State league and a likely looking recruit throughout the spring training, has been turned over to Columbia in the South Atlantic league and left tonight for his new station. Dessauer, rookie pitcher, has drawn an unconditional release and is angling for a job.

Under Southern league rules eighteen of the twenty-two players who will be at Ponce de Leon park Monday afternoon can be carried for thirty days.

As matters stand—and there is As matters stand—and there is no reason to believe that any change will be made later—the infield situation is settled. When "Dutch" Bernsen signed his contract the other day all doubt concerning the initial sack was removed. At second base Arthur Ritter has shown enough to clinch his position. Fred Graff had an easy time convincing Captain Ellam that he was good enough and then some for third base.

George Schmidt's chances of sticking through the season depends very much on what "Red" Wingo decides to do. Should Wingo come into the fold without further trouble he would probably be given back his old job in the leftfield, at least until Roy Carlyle's leg heals entirely. In this event Carlyle' would be given the utility role, but if Roy stays in leftfield permanently Schmidt will be given the utility job, subbing for the infielders.

Mayer's Status In Question.

Some concern is being felt over Erskine Mayer's status. At present Erskine stands as retired from organized baseball and no trouble is anticipated in getting him reinstated, But you can't ever tell about this pastime. Some years ago, 1919 we believe, Erskine belonged to the Chicago White Sox and was sent along with Dave Danforth to the Columbus club of the American association. Danforth recepted but Mayer decided to Technically speaking, Erskine is on the suspended list of the Columbus club, but unless Judge Landis arbitrarily assumes jurisdiction in the matter and rules again against the Atlanta club, Mayer will be reinstated. We have been assured by Cracker officials that the Columbus club is willing to turn Mayer over to Atlanta, but some evil influence is working somewhere and there are possibilities of a slip in the transaction.

A light workout was carried

A light workout was carried through Wednesday following Tuesday's inactivity in the face of the great rainstorm that swamped this part of the world. Routine work, batting practice, warm-ups by the pitchers, a brief session of base-run-ning, fielding and bunting topped off the practice. A stiff session is prom-ised for Thursday.

CHICK KNAUPP SIGNS 1922 VOL CONTRACT

Nashville, Tenn., March 29 .- (Spe cial.)-Chick Knaupp is a holdout no onger.

In due and ancient form the Vols eystoner signed the papers late Tuesday afternoon which annex him he Doyle delegation.

The figures? Ssh! Do not ask estions that will embarrass the Vols r Mr. Knaupp. Did you read a few days back every Vol who signed mus sign at the numerals mentioned in his contract? Is it not enough to know that Chick Knaupp no longer is out of the fold? That he is one of those Vols? Some things must be kept a secret even from Mr. A. Fan.

All the Bug Brigade need know is that Chick Kneupp has equipped himself with baseballing paraphernalia and is ready for chores around the middle sack. The signature of the Vol field captain was acquired just in the very nick of time. For Frank Kane met up with Old Man La Grippe. Frank Kane has been transacting odd Frank Kane has been transacting odd chores around second while Chick Knaupp has been entrenched behind his holdout fort.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Knaupp is a total stranger to most of the Doyle people. Since he arrived and announced his objection to the contract tendered by the Vols, the second of the 1921 skippers has never appeared. 1921 skippers has never appeared around the training camp. He has lost fifteen or wenty pounds laboring to persuade home mags to inflate his pay check. Bu: not once has he swung a club or speared a wild heave. Workout in Alley.

Workout in Alley.

Still Knaupp is in very good condition, having worked out with the Pelcans before he came here on his financial mission, and ought to found to form in jig time. That is, provided, of course, the Vols ever find enough dry spots all at once and large enough to house the flock of baseballers. Yesterday the Doyle people were forced to do their training in an alley. Never can that hoary libel, "He can not pitch up an alley" be used concerning a Doyle slabber without resorting to the grossest slander. Thus are those Vols progressing.

While from a homeish standpoint the signing of Chick Knaupp yesterday was the center of bugs buzsing, there was quite another feverish event.

This is shown by his decisive victory over one of Atlanta's favorite fighters, who is now in Hot Springs recuperating from a hard campaign that ended abruptly when Senor Jacques stepped into the ring with this red-haired chap McLaughlin. The seeing of a golf course lying idle, or practically so, for five perfect golfing days, is something that grates on the nerves of a golfer, especially one who is in position to play between Monday and Friday, but whose financial conditions is such that he is unable to take a full membership in one of the larger clubs. This would not interfere with the regular membership of the clubs, because the majority of these play their golf on Saturdays and Sundays.

Frazee ran a fight once. It was between Jess Willard and Jack Johnson, in Cuba, in 1915. There was a buge crowd, apparently, but it must have crashed the gate, or something. Last time I saw Willard he was still calling and story to the effect that Harry Greb is out of luck. Although he gave Tom Gibbons a beautiful trimming in their fifteen-round fight in Madison Square Garden, he seems no nearer accomplishing his ambition, which is to fight Dempsey for the heavyweight title.

Of course, Greb is a little bit of a fellow compared with Dempsey, But he's powerfully built, very fast and full of grit and stamina. Before Greb fought Gibbons, Dempsey was asked what fighter he thought would give him the most trouble.

"Greb," he said. "He's a busy bee. He's stinging all the time."

The way Greb handled Tom Gibbons, the man with the knockout record, made it look as if Dempsey knew something.

There is a possibility that "Cotton" Knaupp, old wheelhorse of the Pelicans, and oldest player in the league in the point of service, may become utility man of the squad. MOBILE FANS ARE BACKING BALL TEAM

The local team, suffering somewhat in the past from the lack of enthusiasm among its followers, is going to represent a "good" baseball town.

In other words, baseball in the south, faring not so well during "resconstruction days," is going to find itself rejuvenated when the first ball is tossed out on the green by some local dignitary this apring.

"I base my statement," said President Robert Weinacker—for it was none other than the Bear prexy who spoke, in effect the above words, "on the class of men the clubs are now asking waivers on, the type of men who looked strong two years ago but who are passing now to the class B teams."

"I think we are going to have this season the fastest ball ever played in the Southern league," continued Boss Weingcker, "and I think Mobile will have its best support from the fandom. I've never seen as much enthusiasm in Mobile over baseball as there is today. And from what I've heard, there seems to be the same state of affairs in other cities on the circuit."

heard, there seems to be the same state of affairs in other cities on the circuit."

Bert Niehoff, from Los Angeles, who has been hired by Weinacker to handle the Bay City contenders this season, feels equally optimistic.

There is Dell Baker from Portland, who is leading the long list of catchers trying for a Bear berth. Baker has form enough for anybody's double A team, the pilot believes.

Charlie Fulton, J. C. Sigman, Ray Roberts and Ashley Pope are destined among others for the pitching staff.

Emil Huhn at first, Neihoff at second. Raymond Boll or Chick Leathers at short, and Frank Philbin at third seem to stand highest at this time for infield nositions.

The outfield will probably be divided among three of the following: Rhino Williams, Emmett Mulvey, Robert Nixon, Denny Williams, Mickey Jordan, Martin Lorenz, Roy Arndtand R. E. Wickham, Mulvey and Wickham olaved with the local club last year. Walsh and Jordan are from the sand lots of Pittsburg, Hollingsworth and Arndt played around Log Angeles last season. Rhino Williams is from Memphis.

Two valuable methods used in the circuit.

Two valuable methods used in the production of Electromotive Force for purposes of Radio communication are as follows:

(a) Chemical Action (By Primary or Secondary Batteries).

(b) Mechanical Action (By Generators or Dynamos).

PRIMARY BATTERY: A primary battery is composed of primary cells connected together. A single primary cell consists of a jar containing two electrical conductors, each of different material, usually constructed in plate form and supported without touching each other in a liquid known as an Electrolyte. The chemical action of this electrolyte on the material in one of the plates sets up a pressure, or difference of potential, between the plates.

The plate which has the higher potential is termed the Positive Plate and the other the Negative Plate, and it is found that if these two plates are connected by a wire, the difference in potential as a result of chemical action, causes a current to flow from the positive to the negative plate along the wire and from the negative to the positive plate through the electrolyte. ELECTROMOTIVE FORCE, giant broadcasting apparatus on the positive plate through the electrolyte. ELECTROMOTIVE FORCE, roof of the Georgia Railway and Power company is heard distinctly through the materials of the plates and composition of the electrolyte. In Mr. Mellen's outfit. a primary battery, replacement of the parts is necessary, after a time, due to consumption of material in the negative plate and change in composition of the electrolyte.

A common type of primary cell consists of a plate of zinc and a plate of copper suspended-in a dilute solution of sulphuric acid. In this the surphuric acid acts upon the zinc plate. If these plates are connected externally, by a metallic conductor, current will flow from the copper to the zinc plate outside the cell and from the zinc to the copper plate through the electrolyte.

It important to remember that in a primary bettery the plates.

It is important to remember that in a primary battery the plates must be of different materials and the electrolyte must act chem-ically upon one of the plates in order for the cell to develop ELEC-

Longest Commercial Radiophone Circuit in World to Open This Week.

China will put into operation this week the longest commercial radio telephone circuit in the world.

Radio telephone sets have been installed at Peking and Tientsin, bridg-ing a gap of ninety miles. They have been connected with the regular telebeen connected with the regular telephone lines of the Chinese government. When a telephone subscriber in Peking desires to talk with a friend in Tientsin, he puts in his call in the usual manner to the operator in Peking, who signals Tientsin over a radio channel. The Tientsin operator in turns makes the necessary connection and the conversation is on. So far as the operation of the system is

To add to the difficulties of the government department of communications, the robber bands that have infected the country since the start of the Peking-Canton differences have learned the value of copper and have acquired a nasty habit of occasionally cutting down unrotected telephone wires. Both of these troubles will be obviate by the new serial circuit as far as Peking and Tientsin are confar as Peking and Tientsin are con-cerned.

To the United States was the credit of giving China the means for simplifying its telephone problems. The radio sets supplied to the Chinese have special features to insure the greatest freedom possible from in-terference both from atmospheris elec-tricity and from other stations. The normal range of the transmitters is approximately 100 miles under fairly severe conditions. Under favorable conditions the sets have a very much greater range. During the installation period, a number of tests were made in which music was broadcasted from the transmitting station. In some of these tests the music was heard at points 1,000 miles away from the transmitting station.

The spider webs are very efficient for wave lengths up to about 2,000 meters, but when you get above that the coils will be so large that they will not be easily handled. The honeycombs are best for the extremely long waves. For broadensting the number of turns should be about 30 to 35 for the primary and secondary, and 40 to 50 for the tickler. It is best to determine the actual number of turns by experimenting. The amount increases as the wave length goes up.

New York, March 29 .- The trend New York, March 29.—The trend of the cotton market was downward today, although the duliness of trade prevented quotations from showing anything more than a moderate setback. The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 1 point. A little buying came in during the first hour, based on rains in many parts of the eastern belt, and May at one time advanced to 17.83 while October sold at 16.81, or 3 to 7 points over the previous night's close. October sold at 16.81, or 8 to 7 points over the previous night's close.

Some of the early buying was for New Orleans account and part of it for local traders who were influenced by the steadiness of cables and the firm opening of the stock market. The fact that rains also appeared in the western belt where they are needed, eventually offset the unfavorable developments in the east and later in the morning when the weekly government weather and crop report

The May premium over July of The May premium over July of about 60 points was maintained today and it seemed to be the general belief that there is a large short interest in May, although for the present at least, large spot interests appear to be willing to supply the May buyers at the 60 point difference. It was understood that considerable of the cotton tendered here on March contract was of exceptionally good staple and grade and that the interests who took up this cotton now have a stock, a good part of which should be readily marketable. Near the close further weakness appeared under increased offerings from Wall street and the effect of continued dismal reports from the local goods market, and May declined to 17.67, with October off to 16.68, the close being steady at a net loss of 7 to 11 points. Additional bookings of ocean freight room for cotton out of New York were made today for about 8,500 bales, making total bookings of fully 25,000 bales during the past week. The cotton is to be shipped to English and continental points.

In the early trading the tone was steady and the rains in the central and eastern divisions of the belt were responsible for enough buying to put prices 1 to 5 points over yesterday's finals, but when May traded at 16.54 the buying power of the market seemed to have been expended. The market did not move far for a considerable period, but the weekly returns from the belt at the middle of the morning left an impression that lasted all day. Brokers and traders generally spoke of the reports as being more favorable than expected, especially in regard to the mention of progress with splanting in Texas, and of much cotton being up in southern Georgia. In the alternoon private telegrama came in from Texas stating that rains of the last few hours had been beneficial and there was also as rumor on the floor of the exchange to the effect that cotton was being reshipped from Japan to this country. The earnings statements for February generally show the expected improvement, and the market may also be assured of a continued improvement in March. It was noticeable that the eastern roads received most attention, and these carriers, which depend to a great eaxient upon the transportation of coal, were particularly active.

The earnings statement of Chesapeake & Ohio, for the month of February was one of the best published.

The market still is paying no attention apparently to the coalestrike, or at least those traders who profess to look upon this development as a very bearish influence thus far have not been able to find an expression of their opinion in market vaiues. The action of the rails leads us to wonder how far they must advance before there is outside buying on any scale.

The recovery yesterday restored the average of the industrials to the level of the close of last week, and wiped out the losses austained Monday.

There was short covering yesterday in the equiments and steels, and pressure on the singar, shares was removed. The last named group has been subject to profit-taking during the past feng weeks and has also feit the weight of short selling. The reaction which these shares have suffered undoubtedly has improved their technical position, and they should again move forward with a continuance of constructive news as regards the raw sugar market.

It has been well strike tate in the week as an excuse to make a demonstration on the selling side, but demonstrations widely advertised some days in advance of their expected occurrence seldom have much lasting effect. One thing the market has shown in the past ten days, and that is that it will take acmathing more than professional selling to bring out real liquidation.

A. A. Housman & Co.—Today's market has continued to wait in vain for fresh features to alter its complete stagnation. The basis in the south is resported easier, and the weekly weather report was decidedly more favorable than has been expected. Better industrial prospects again were the chief accelerating force. Still higher prices were quoted for finished iron and steel, and latest surveys of conditions by trade authorities, including The Iron Age, were almost optimistic. Even coppers were not unfavorably influenced by further weakening of prices in the metal market.

A very considerable portion of the day's business apparently emanated from professional sources, but no small part of the inquiry for seasoned shares and bonds were credited to investors seeking an outlet for April interest and dividend incomes.

Steels, equipments, oils and motors and utilities were the stocks most in demand. Coalers furnished much of the buying power among the rails, together with junior issues, especially Toledo, St. Louis and Western common and preferred.

Withdrawals for federal account occasioned the firmer tone of demand money rates, but time funds were unaltered. Many 30 to 90-day offerings were made on the 41-2 per cent basis and several longer maturities for commercial paper were accepted at the same rate.

Dealings in foreign exchanges were unusually dull and irregular. Sterling showed a further slight recovery from the recent reaction. The Paris rate eased nominally and most other continental bills were three to almost ten points higher. Reports that the Spaniah government is seeking a large loan in this market were not reflected in the movement of the pesets.

FEATURE MARKET

New York, March 29 .- Persistent accumulation of liberty issues was the dominant feature of today's bond market, several of the fours and all of the 41-4s mounting to the year's best quotations.

Extreme gains of 6 to 40 cents per $100 bonds were shaded here and there in the speculative profit-taking of the later dealings, but final prices testified to the increasing inquiry for these issues.

of the later dealings, but final prices testified to the increasing inquiry for these issues.

High and low quotations for the year furnished an interesting commentary on the fluctuations of this premier security. The 31-2's at the maximum of 98.40 compare with a recent low of 94.48. The first 4's at 97.40 compared with a low of 95.70 and all the 41-4s, which seem to be most favored by small investors, show gains of 2 to 31-2 points, or $3 to $3.50 per $100 from minimum quotations of the early weeks of the year.

Factors which have given the liberty bond market its recent momentum are provided by easy money and the enormous amount of April interest and dividend payments seeking an easy and secure outlet.

Today's dealings were most extensive in the second, third and fourth 41-4s, those issues recently being attractive because of their large interest yields. The tax exempt 31-2s also were heavily traded in with victory 43-4s, which are callable this year.

New York, March 23.—Following a strong opening, the stock market turned quiet, but with prices holding. Later in the day activity increased with the price movement upward under the leadership of the steel and equipment shares. Bethlehem B made a new high record for the year. That company now has $88,000,000 working capital, it was pointed out, including $55,000,000 cash and government securities, with inventories greatly reduced. American Locomotive, it was also pointed out, has added to its working capital within the past seven years an amount equal to $120 a share on the common stock.

Since January 1 the orders placed for freight cars foot up/40,000, and if that rate should be continued the equipment cmpanies will have the largest business since 1906. There are now inquiries in the equipment market for 10,000 cars.

Steel manufacturers have gained ground during the past weak in their efforts to increase selling prices, according to today's Iron Age. The more active buying that developed during the second week in March has continued with the rate of steel mill output still climbing. Both consumers and producers are reported as being surprised at the rate of new orders being placed. March bookings, it was stated, are likely to be the largest since the summer of 1920, or, that is, when the unfilled orders published began to show declines.

The trading in Pennsylvania was new high records for the year, on prospects that the March earnings unusually active and heavy, on prospects that the March earnings will be even more favorable than those just published for February. It is known that Pennsylvania has been carrying this month a very heavy coal tonuage in anticipation of the strike.

Conference Held.

A conference between New Haven's bankers and officials has just been held to go over the results of the offer made to refund the $27,000,000 4 per cent bonds falling due April 1 into 7 per cent bonds, it was learned today that no figures will be given out until April 1, but that the deposits so far of outsanding 4 per cent bonds indicate that the plan will be successful.

In the future, he says, the final test of the standing of the acceptance will be with us as it is in England the fact of whether or not the central bank will buy or refuse the paper. The great advantage gained will be that the cumbersome regulations need not be sent any more to foreign customers.

"The Unloved Wife."

(At the Atlanta Theater.)

The drama is as old as civilization. Its power to entertain comes from the dramatic opportunity to place before the public, questions from real life, which are convincing; that the few truths of living, which have been generally accepted from time immemorial, holds good in any day and age.

In writing "The Unloved Wife," Florence Edna May, used "Truth" as a foundation, and in the production which followed, Miss May did not deviate from the original theme. "Should the woman be tied to the home, while the man can do as he pleases? It is a fact that every married woman at some time, tithinks she is unloved..." Rather home, while the man can do as he pleases? It is a fact that every married woman at some time, tinks she is unloved—?" Rather unusual, you say, to bring to the theater the vital truths directly or indirectly connected with your daily life. But, if you would know what real suffering is, find a woman's heart that has been broken. Can you, who understand correctly, answer this time-worn question, "How long does the homeymoon last?" If you can, you have answered one of the questions of the agest.

In a play lacking none of the essential ingredients to make a popular appeal and blessed with a cast of excellence, Miss May is winning fresh laurels in the production of "The Unloved Wife," now playing the Atlanta theater, and to remain there for the balance of the week, with mnatinees daily for ladies only. The evening performances are for everybood over sixteen. The evening performance everybody over sixteen.

They make unusual use of their queues, using them for swings in the air and for hurling purposes. There will be seven big headline feature vaudeyille acts on the program at Keith's Lyrie theater for today, Friday and Saturday.

Eva Fay, "The high priestess of mysticism" in her weirdly mysterious offering, "Thaumaturgy," is the headline feature. For the last three days of the week commencing with this afternoon's performance and continuing the balance of the week Mrs. Fay's wonderful powers to answer seemingly impossible questions borders on the supernatural, but for which she makes no claims. A Question of Honor.

At the Criterien.

It isn't the high cost of living, but the high cost of extras that has contributed to the expense of making "A Question of Honor," Anita Stewart's current attraction at the Criterion theater this week. The story is a vivid drama of western life in the high Sierras and involves a conflict between Wall street financial interests who seek a railroad right of way and settlers fighting to retain their property. The story called for several hundred extras, and the expense of maintaining them was something that a quartermaster general's staff circus and the committee from Yaarab carcus and the committee from Markab temple have taken every precaution so that rain will not interfere with the comfort of those who attend the four performances. The Jackson street-show grounds were chosen with this in mind because they are high and well drained with good sidewalks and drained, with good sidewalks and paved streets all around. The Sparks payed streets all around. The Spark people are starting out with a brand new waterproof top, and the main en trance will be put close to the side walk, so that everybody connectes with the event says: "Let it rain if it must?" The Yarmouth started with the consignment but was stopped by federal agents and the liquor seized when members of the crew tapped the cargo and became hilarious. Circus Next Week

A circus would not be a circus without clowns, and Sparks' circus, which shows here next Monday and Yuesday on the Jackson street show grounds under the auspices of Yaarab temple of the Mystic Shrme, abounds in the funmakers of the sawdust ring.

Mastery of the art of mimiery is of nimost importance to one who aspires to success as a present day clown, according to Dophie Blue, a prominent member of the joy department of the Sparks circus.

The world is full of funny folks, and if one knows how to mimic them faithfully success is assured, declares Blue. "Whenever a clown creates a comic character for the circus he has a certain person or a certain type im mind. Unless he knows the person or type and is a real mimic, he can not portray the character cleverly. "In my career under the white tops I've had to portray many types of funny folks, and the funniest characters were replicas of those I had seen while on the road."

Dophie Blue is one of a small army of fun producers who appear in conjunction with 'he elaborate performances of the Sparks circus this season. The Lumber Store

We call it a lumber store because it is more than a lumber plant. We carry in stock not only the kinds and di-mensions of lumber you might want, but also everything you may need to build and paint with. Coming to this store to buy such things is like going to a big department store to buy dry goods-you find it all here under one roof-and priced right, too.

CZARIST OFFICERS HELD AS ASSASSINS

Berlin, March 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two Czarist officers have been arrested charged with killing Vladimir Naboukoff and attempting to assasinate Professor Paul N. Milnkoff. The men are Peter Schabelski-Brock and Jaribos Tabokitski. M. Naboukoff was killed during an attack on M. Milukoff while the latter was addressing a Russian meeting here last might.

Both of the men held have been identified by people who were on the stage when the shots were fired, but the authorities believe other Russian monarchists who were presented but who escaped in the uproar were also implicated in the plot to assassinate M. Milukoff.

Professor Milukoff was formerly minister of foreign affairs in the Russian provisional government and M. Naboukoff was secretary of state in the first Russian parliamentary cabinet under Prince Lvoff.
